Protecting your personal information

Please continue to practice caution when opening emails or text messages that have links, underlying messages or ask for personal information. Top three rules to live by:

1. Be wary of unknown authors, URLs and attachments which could contain a computer virus or capture your personal information.
2. Do not click on emails that look suspicious.
3. When in doubt, just delete!

In this digital age, it can become a chore remembering usernames and passwords or knowing what emails to trust. We understand the struggle, but we also take online security very seriously. That's why we like to remind you the importance of protecting your personal information. Visit u1cu.org/OnlineSecurity for fraud alerts or tips and best practices on scams.
